DETAILED ACTION

Specification

Applicant is reminded of the proper content of an abstract of the disclosure.

A patent abstract is a concise statement of the technical disclosure of the patent and should include that which is new in the art to which the invention pertains. If the patent is of a basic nature, the entire technical disclosure may be new in the art, and the abstract should be directed to the entire disclosure. If the patent is in the nature of an improvement in an old apparatus, process, product, or composition, the abstract should include the technical disclosure of the improvement.

The abstract should not compare the invention with the prior art.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In regards to claim 1, first it is unclear how the word coding further limits the scope of flip chip. Secondly claim 1 recites the limitation " the semiconductor" in Line 1 and "the width ...the portions" in line 5. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim

Further Claim 2 recites the limitation " said...second bonding pads" in Line 12. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

Art Unit: 2827

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in-

(1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effect under this subsection of a national application published under section 122(b) only if the international application designating the United States was published under Article 21(2)(a) of such treaty in the English language; or

(2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that a patent shall not be deemed filed in the United States for the purposes of this subsection based on the filing of an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a).

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Ibnabdeljalil et al. (US 6,365,978).

Ibnabdeljalil et al. (Fig 6, 7) discloses a method for manufacturing a semiconductor device which includes a package having an inherent mounting region for at least one semiconductor element, a first region (region substrate under chip and portion of substrate immediately adjacent chip; including 65 Fig 6) containing said mounting region and substantially sharing point symmetry with said mounting region, a width of portions of said first region not including mounting region being substantially uniform, a second region provided at a perimeter edge of said first region and not substantially sharing point of symmetry with said mounting region, said method comprising steps of mounting said semiconductor elements on the mounting region by means of a flip chip (Fig 7; Col. 4, Lines 49-52), supplying underfill resin (68; Col.6, Lines 62-63) to said second region that inherently move to said first region so that the gap between the semiconductor and mounting region is filled with resin; and inherently arranging first and second bonding pads (65, 65a) in said first region and the latter in a second region and connecting first and second lead wires (67) derived from said semiconductor element (60) to said first and second bonding pads.
